Q3 PREVENTION HIGHLIGHT

In a recent Smart Moves Emotional Awareness session, students engaged in a paper roller coaster project encountered frustration while working together. However, a significant breakthrough occurred when one student, feeling overwhelmed, bravely asked to step away briefly and get a drink of water. This simple yet powerful act demonstrated their newfound ability to recognize their emotions and take proactive steps to regulate them. As a result, the atmosphere in the group transformed from one of frustration to one of collaboration and support.
